

The Hildersham Avenue of Trees on A604

I recently came across these two photos that show the A604 before the bypass was built & it became the A1307, the so called “Road of Death”.

It had this wonderful avenue of trees, making this a beautiful walk to school, when I went to Abington Primary School in the 1960s.

Sadly indirectly, it was my time in the top class at Abington, when a tragedy was so closely avoided that the bypass was hastily built before a real catastrophe struck, but that's another story

An early postcard shows the avenue, with the site of the Fatal Motor Car Accident, but it must have been cleared away as it just points to the side of the road
